FIRES in APRIL

Fire calls answered by the Drayton Valley Fire Brigade during the month of April were:

- No. 17 Garbage behind Mobil Oil Apt. No damage.
- No. 18 April 5 Grass behind new school. No damage.
- No. 19 April 5 Small buildings at farm of R. Wikander. Est. damage $150.00. Started from grass fire.
- No. 20 Date not recorded. P. Mikelow garbage truck. est. damage $25.00.
- No. 21 April 16 Grass fire on property of Swan Jordan. no damage. Started by children.
- No. 22 April 16 Cigarette ignited by cookstove in home of Ray Barad estimated damage. $15.00.

No. 23 April 29 Brush fire spread from insurance grounds no damage.

The Drayton Valley Fire Brigade are ready to begin their annual property fire inspection program. You are asked to invite the members who call at your home to enter and give you this free service. Let's clean up our town and make it a fire free summer.

Since we have moved into our new fire hall and the town is getting ever larger, we are recruiting a limited number of new members. If you work in the business part of town, you are needed on the fire brigade. Anyone who is interested is asked to write box 46 in care of the fire chief.

DRAYTON VALLEY ATHLETIC ASSOC.

Girl Guides Present Tulip Bulbs To Town

First company of Girl Guides presented the Town of Drayton Valley with one hundred yellow tulip bulbs to be planted in the grounds of the new Town Hall. Here His Worship, Mayor A. Meier, is seen accepting the gift in behalf of the Town. Girl Guide Diane Gerow is making the presentation. The ceremony took place Wednesday evening, May 4th, at the Town Hall.

FUR BUYERS OF 1960

Staff Picture

Echoes of 1870 were ringing in Drayton Valley when the Drayton Valley unit of the world's oldest mercantile establishment, the Hudson's Bay Company, purchased furs during the winter months.

A considerable number of beaver pelts have been bought by Mr. Lorne Klapp, manager of the Drayton Valley Hudson's Bay store. Apparently, there is still an unusually large amount of beaver in this area. Some squirrel and muskrat furs have also been purchased by the local store. Drayton Valley district is one of the older for producing sections of Alberta.

The above picture was taken on May 2nd, 1960, just 290 years after the company was first formed in England for the purpose of carrying on trade in the New World. Fur buying has always been, and still is, an important function in almost all the Hudson's Bay Northern stores scattered throughout northern Canada.

In the above picture Mr. Malcolm Cambridge, Credit manager of Drayton Valley's Hudson's Bay store and Mr. Lorne Klapp, manager of the local store, display beaver pelts which were purchased recently in Alder Flats.

Home & School
The Regular Meeting of the Drayton Valley Home and School Association was held April 25 with a fair attendance.
Mr. Grey reported that the School Board have asked the Drayton Valley Home & School Association to sponsor putting a lawn in front of the Elementary School. Mr. Symms said he thought that would be possible and all agreed. He also said the fence installation was progressing satisfactorily.
Mr. Grey said Registration for pre-school children would be held about the end of May and he hoped everyone registered whether they might move away or not would register since it gives a fair idea of how many Grade 1 pupils are anticipated. Even though people move away it seemed as if high there always were about the same number take their places.
Plans were made to serve at Treck Meet should one be held.
A motion was made and carried that the Executive choose the nominating committee - also they are to choose a scholarship committee to take care of the future scholarship.

HINTON POOL REPORT

The following swimming pool report was taken from the Hinton Herald and shows the estimated cost of the swimming pool for that town. The pool is now under construction.

The cost does not include purification and filtering costs, as that is supplied by the filtering plant of the Northwestern Pulp company. Cost of a filtering plant run from four to five thousand dollars additional over these estimated costs.

The Swimming Pool Board have come up with a couple of shed ideas that will prove interesting to the public in general.

The first is a cost of construction to April 11 that shows how much has been spent and where. The second is a schedule of construction for the pool that will, if kept up to date, make the hoped for July first opening a reality.

ESTIMATE OF COST OF SWIMMING POOL PROJECT

won by Mr. O. Palmer's and Miss Lewin's rooms.
A film "Family Circle" was much enjoyed. It dealt with parents and teachers trying to work together for the child's good and how sometimes chance remarks made at home can confuse a child and influence their thinking.

The next meeting will be held Monday May 30 since the 23rd is a holiday.

The Grade 3 rooms will be open for parents to visit. It is hoped Mr. Huchinson, the Regional Director will be able to attend.

A good start has been made on Drayton Valley's first full-fledged housing project, with the houses now under construction by Inter-urban Development Company.

Contrary to the opinion of some folks, these are not pre-fab houses, but are custom-built, right on the job, according to the architect's specifications.

Why is it when someone has an hour to waste they spend it with someone who hasn't.

Learning from a trip to California and way points at the beginning of this week were Deane and Karl Belling.

Mrs. Faith Christian reports, according to husband John, that she is enjoying her stay at home in England. She left Drayton Valley the middle of March and expects to return about the end of June.

A recent returnee from foreign shores is Bernie von Tettenborn, and his wife, Gladys.

Bernie reports having spent a large sum of money for their trip. Funny thing about trips, how costly they are!

With seedling now well underway this report from Jack Thomas isn't as much of red-hot news as it was when we first got it; but Jack reports that he made a record for the Rocky Rapids district when he started to plow on April 17th.

He had threshed 110 acres of stubble prior to that, to clear his fields for cultivation.

Apparently the West Coast had some strange attraction for many Drayton Valley folks. Henry and Edith Belling also took it in during their recent peregrinations which also took them to the Yukon and up into the Peace

From Scoop's Notebook

Mrs. Swap, of Rocky Rapids, moved into her house which was recently moved in, beside the Rocky Rapids Community Hall.

Bill and Anne McClelland left recently for Fort St. John, B.C., where Bill has been transferred by Jones and Laughlin Company.

To wish them well, friends Elsie and Ralph Belfor purchased them a subscription to the P.N.A.

With seedling now well underway this report from Jack Thomas isn't as much of red-hot news as it was when we first got it; but Jack reports that he made a record for the Rocky Rapids district when he started to plow on April 17th.

He had threshed 110 acres of stubble prior to that, to clear his fields for cultivation.

Apparently the West Coast had some strange attraction for many Drayton Valley folks. Henry and Edith Belling also took it in during their recent peregrinations which also took them to the Yukon and up into the Peace

FORGIVENESS

Submitted by Rev. A. Wright, of the Drayton Valley United Church.

Taken from Treasury of the Christian World.

There is a novel by a Norwegian author, Johann Bojer, called The Great Hunger. It tells of a poor Norwegian lad, Peer Holm, who, by dint of hard labour, became a great engineer, and made a huge fortune in Africa. He was an orphan and, during the years of struggle, lived with his little sister. She fell suddenly ill and died, and though he advanced rapidly from one position to another there remained a great unfulfilled hunger in his soul. After his great success in Africa he returns to his native land, marries and settles down. But soon his speculations begin to go wrong and in time every penny of his fortune vanishes. After much poverty and many wanderings he is reduced to being a kind of local blacksmith in a poor village; but the brother, already settled there, is afraid that the newcomer may snatch his daily bread from him. Both Peer and the brother are on the last confines of poverty, and there is not a living for two in the village, so they become bitter enemies. Amid all his bitterness and despair Peer has one hope and comfort, his wife Merie, and his little daughter Asta. The brother and he quarrel bitterly; the storm passes, and then the whirlwind comes. Peer tells it in his own words: "A couple of days later I was standing at the forge, when I heard a shriek from my wife. I rushed out—what could be the matter? Merie was down by the fence already and all at once I saw what it was—there was Asta lying on the ground under the body of a great bear, the brother's dog."

"And then? Well, Merie tells me it was I that tore the thing away from the little bundle of clothes beneath it, and carried our little girl home. A doctor is often a good refuge in trouble, but though he may sew up a ragged tear in a child's throat it does not follow that it will help much. There was a mother, though, that would not let him go—that cried and prayed and clung about him, begging him to try once more if nothing could be done. And when at last he was gone, she was always for going after him again, and grieved on the floor, and tore her hair—could not, would not believe what she knew was true?"

So all night mother and father sat in silence, terribly alone, by the bed of a slaughtered child. There was no sound save an occasional sob from the heart-broken mother. It seemed as though they sat alone in a dead world, as though they had been actors in a drama upon a brilliantly lit stage and then the lights had suddenly gone out, and they were alone in the darkness with no and voice, no fellow-actors, and no

him. "I want to sow the brother's plot with it," he said, almost ashamed of the thought, as though it were treachery to her. "It's best to do it now," he went on, "so that nobody will know it was me." She sat up and stared at him in amazement. "What!" she exclaimed. "Hiss—the brother's!" "Yes," said Peer. Then he searched round for a morsel for this impulse he could not explain. "You it won't do us any good, you know, to see his bit of field lying bare all summer."

Fate had been cruel to Peer. All his past experiences should have driven him to bitterness and revenge; but a new spirit was born within him as he stood naked on the shattered ruins of his fortunes. He passed out into the cold and silent night. This is how he describes his emotions. "The spark of eternity was once more aglow in me, and said, 'Let there be light.' And more and more it came to me that it is man himself that must create the divine in heaven and earth—that that is his triumph over the dead omnipotence of the universe. Therefore I went out and sowed the corn in my enemy's field, that God might exist."

John K. Elliott.

One night, some time after little Asta was laid to rest, Peer Holm felt unable to sleep. A vague purpose seemed to be forming itself in his mind, even though all his nature cried out against the thing he dreamed of. He rose and dressed slowly, but still some purpose kept struggling within him. Merie's quick ear caught the sound of his movements. At that moment the clock struck two. "Where are you going?" asked Merie. He hesitated to reply because he could scarcely say. It was all so vague. "I want to see if we haven't a half-bushel of barley left," he answered.

"Barley—what do you want with barley in the middle of the night?" she inquired.

Then the purpose grew clear to

REPORT FROM PARLIAMENT HILL

By Hugh M. Horner, M.D., M.P.,
Jasper-Edson,
House of Commons
Canada

During the Easter recess I had an opportunity to go to Washington with the Canada-U.S. Interparliamentary Group. This is an association which was established last year at which members of the Legislatures of the two countries could sit down and unofficially discuss matters of mutual interest. The first meeting was held last year at the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway when Canada was host.

Our trip this time consisted of a day in New York City, then three days of conferences in Washington and finally two days inspecting and being briefed at Strategic Air Command Headquarters at Omaha, Nebraska and Norad (North American Defence Command at Colorado Springs).

I was impressed by our discussions with the American Congressmen and Senators, of their acute awareness of Canada and our problems. This is something which has just developed in that country. It has shown up recently in their decision to accept the quota on Canadian oil. Also on new and better consultation between Canada and the U.S. with regard to the disposal of their wheat surplus.

Our delegation was divided into three groups: Defence and Defence Production; Boundary Water Problems; Economic Problems. I was pleased to serve in the group discussing economic problems. These were broken up into those problems outside of North America—that is, the relation of both our countries trade to the rest of the world; and those problems affecting trade between Canada and the United States.

In the realm of our relations with the "inner Six" and "Outer Seven", we pointed out to our American friends that we were concerned with what looked like higher tariffs of the inner Six to our exports. We pointed out that our exports were in a narrow range than the U.S. exports and were more important in our overall trade. The United States view was that they were happy to use a united Europe which would be a solid block in front of Communism. However, they were aware of our feelings and agreed with us that we should continue and intensify our efforts to have an understanding with these six groups.

The discussions with regard to trade between Canada and the United States were concerned with the position of U.S. subsidiaries in Canada, wheat disposal, oil exports and metals, steel, lead, nickel, copper and aluminum.

I was of course primarily concerned with wheat and oil and as I have said previously, in the past two years there has been a gratifying acknowledgement of Canada's position in regard to these two products. We were agreed that the oil industry in both countries was suffering from a national policy shaped to a great extent by the nature and holdings of overseas oil companies based in the U.S.

However, we agreed that the oil export business must be settled with high level consultation, taking into consideration foreign affairs, mutual defence and economic stability.

We discussed other petroleum products as well, particularly the by-products of natural gas and oil refinery. At present the liquid propane gases are included in the free access into the U.S. and we suggested that this should remain. The question with regard to sulphur is more difficult and as world supplies are nearing surplus conditions the future for this product was clouded.

After our discussions in Washington we flew by 701 jet to Omaha to see the S.A.C. We were briefed on their role as the Free World's major attacking force. The high ranking officials here consider their main mission as one of deterrence and only secondary of retaliation. I was impressed with their sense of duty and purpose and the efficiency and ability of this world-wide force. From Omaha we went to Norad at Colorado Springs. Here we were briefed on North American Defence. This is a joint operation between Canada and the United States. Again the purpose and efficiency is high. I personally am convinced that this force is trying to give to our two countries the best possible defence. It was of interest to note that these people who are the specialists of defence of our two countries were convinced that the Bomarc was an essential component of that defence force. It would be stressed that it is only a small part of a defence system. Turning to interception, they felt that the only ones worthwhile now were long range ones—that is, with a range of about three times that which was anticipated in our CP-105, the Arrow. This is of course one of the main reasons for the scrapping of the Arrow.

If we as a nation are to maintain our independence, then it becomes absolutely essential that we play our full part in the defence of our country and not leave it to someone else as is sometimes suggested.

Temptation may be strong, but it seldom overtakes the man who runs from it.

Little Verna Hodgson is recovering nicely from an attack of rheumatic fever. It is expected that she should be home from hospital this week.

Last Tuesday evening friends of newlyweds, Elmer and Maxine Madden, surprised the young people with a shower at Elmer's parents' home. Elmer's friends enjoyed meeting his bride and the good wishes of all are with the happy young couple.

Mrs. Wollachlager has greatly enjoyed her visit with relatives in Montebello, Mexico. Her vivid description of orange trees and roses in bloom makes one wonder why we stay here where the leaves don't come out until May, but further on the writer mentioned vicious biting insects and new houses flooded by torrential rains. Guess no place has everything.

Our very best wishes for future happiness are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Whyte.

The most intensive and extensive market studies ever made in Canada on the subject of light liquid hydrocarbons were released today by Pembina Pipe Line Ltd.

The studies were made by the Pembina-Producers Research Group, composed of several major producers and Pembina's wholly-owned Foothills Pipe Lines Ltd. The studies included an analysis of the Alberta Market Demand by Dr. Hu Harries of Hu Harries and Associates; a study of B.C., Pacific Northwest, and Pacific Offshore Market Demand by the B.C. Research Council; a study of Canadian Market Demand from Saskatchewan to the Atlantic Provinces by Hu Harries and Associates; and a study of the Great Lakes Industrial Area Market Demand by the Southwest Research Institute of San Antonio, Texas. These studies were augmented by extensive field trips by Pembina officials, by reports submitted by marketing companies, and by marketing experience of the Joint Producers of the Pembina Committee.

The Pembina-Producers Group has forecast a production of 92,000 barrels a day of liquid hydrocarbons in the very first year of new gas export. (Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd., now has an Alberta export license to mid-western U.S. and the Alberta Government has granted licenses to Alaboma & Southern and Westcoast Transmissions).

The hydrocarbons studies in the market research included propane, butanes, and condensate which in turn contains most gasoline and diesel fuel. All of these hydrocarbons are contained in the foothills area gas reservoir from which new natural gas for export will be obtained.

The conclusion of the Pembina-Producers Group, after examining possible markets for nearly a two-year period, is that the Great Lakes Industrial Area is the only market capable of absorbing the total Alberta surplus hydrocarbons in the reasonable future.

Here is what the studies reveal will be the 1982 demand for Western Canadian propane, butanes and condensate: 23,000 barrels per day. The estimated demand for propane was arrived at by allowing a 14% per year increase in domestic fuel sales over 1957 demand; a 20% increase per year in carburetion sales, and the growth of an industrial market by some 20%. In determining the volume of butanes which might be used as raw material, provision was made for the contemplated requirements of the Polymer Corporation butadiene plant or any such plant proposed for the tied Deer area; an increase in alkylation demands, and an increase in demand of existing industry.

A surplus of 70,000 barrels a day of the liquid hydrocarbons represents a volume approximately the same as the total amount of crude oil used by all refineries in the Province. What can be done with it? If it is used as a refinery raw material it backs up what its own volume of crude oil, which simply transfers the surplus problem to the oil producers. Also, use of liquid hydrocarbons as refinery feedstock requires specialized refinery installations and the end products obtained are relatively free of asphalt and other heavier ends desirable in many markets and all of which are obtained when crude oil is used as a feedstock. At the most, then, the liquid hydrocarbons can only be used in quantities of up to 30% as refinery feedstocks.

Some liquid hydrocarbons can be used for "flooding" oil fields to maintain oil formation pressure, but in a comparatively short time they are re-produced with the oil and still require a market. If they are constantly re-cycled into gas formations, lessening pressures cause the condensate to "drop-out" and in time all of the liquid hydrocarbons could be lost forever just as surely as if they had been "flared off." Alberta's Conservation Board policy is to prevent disposal of the liquid hydrocarbons by burning.

The Pembina studies estimated that the Province would gain approximately $3,600,000 a year from royalties on the new export of gas, and that it could gain some $1,600,000, nearly half as much again, from the yearly royalties on the sale of liquid hydrocarbons. If the hydrocarbons used to repressure oil and gas fields.

On the other hand, the studies show, the Great Lakes Industrial Area, centered on Chicago, has a refining capacity of 500,000 barrels per day which is growing every year and requires very large quantities of liquid hydrocarbons for refinery raw material. In addition to the refining capacity, the area imports large quantities of refined products. Alberta's surplus hydrocarbons, if transported by pipe line, could be easily absorbed into this market without replacing any market for Alberta petroleum crude. The Chicago-Midwest area has never used West Canadian petroleum. The manufacturing industry of the area has an immediate market of ten million people, with access to twenty-three million additional people by competitive waterborne transportation. An outlet on the Great Lakes, through water freight on the St. Lawrence Seaway, would also give Alberta liquid hydrocarbons a chance to provide the markets of Eastern Canada.

Pembina officials were emphatic in stating their marketing conclusions: there will be a very large surplus of Alberta liquid hydrocarbons; even by replacing local crude oil markets with these products, not all of them could be utilized, using them for flooding purposes only gives a small reprieve in solving the market problem; the only market which can handle all of Alberta's surplus hydrocarbon products, without disturbing present and possible crude oil markets, is the Great Lakes Industrial Area, and it can be reached economically only by pipe line.

S.P.C.A. MEMBER OWNS UNIQUE PUP

This is "Bounce". "Bounce" was born to a part Spaniel-part mongrel female dog owned by Mrs. Bill Norquist, (who, incidentally is a member of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.)

Bounce was born in October 1959; his male parent never did come around again to lay claim to his progeny. The pup was the only one in the litter.

This unique little canine has two complete sets of teeth and claws that turn backwards instead of being shaped in the way all orthodox dogs claws are. His hair resembles more than somewhat the quills of a porcupine; causing Mrs. Norquist to believe his mama may have frightened by a porcupine before he was born.

Bounce gets his name from his unusual style of locomotion. He bounces instead of walking or running like all ordinary dogs. Now eight months old Bounce just weighs the same as a pound of butter... ie. one pound.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest McConnell

In a double ring ceremony in Drayton Valley United Church, at 10:00 a.m. Monday, May 9th, before the flower-decked altar, the Reverend Alton Wright read the wedding lines to join Mr. Ernest Franklin McConnell and Miss Sylvia Marie Hinse daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aime Hinse, of Widewater, Alberta, in holy wedlock.

Mrs. Doris McConnell, sister-in-law to the groom was maid of honor and Mr. Jack McConnell, of Dawson Creek, B.C., brother of the groom, was best man. The bride was given away by Mr. Romeo Maisonneuve.

The bride was becomingly clad in white satin gown, with white net overlay and lilypoint sleeves. She wore a finger-tip veil, attached to a pearl crown. A bride's bouquet of pink and white carnations completed the ensemble.

The maid of honor wore a yellow satin gown, with yellow net overlay and a yellow crown. She carried a matching bouquet.

During the signing of the guest register Mrs. Eleanor Pickup played the organ.

Following their honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. McConnell will reside in Drayton Valley.

There now insurance import tax on totalling $13,296 on a 1957 car for personal use.

Vol. 5 No. 20 May 19, 1960. A. Hayford, Publisher. Box 120, Drayton Valley, Alberta

WOMAN KILLED IN CAR ACCIDENT

Tragedy struck early Sunday morning, May 15 when a pickup truck driven by Mr. Kenneth Cocks, 32, of Drayton Valley struck a man and his wife on 50th street just north of the 50th Ave. intersection. Instantly killed was Mrs. Shirley Stevens, 18, and seriously injured was her husband Mr. Allen Stevens, 25. The accident occurred at approximately 4:00 a.m.

The accident occurred at a point near the Valley Dairy, just north of the intersection and the bodies of both Mr. and Mrs. Stevens were evidently carried by the pickup about 160 feet to a point just in front of the Advertiser office where they were probably dropped from the truck and were picked up soon after the accident by Drayton Valley Ambulance and rushed to the Drayton Valley Hospital, where Mrs. Stevens was pronounced dead upon arrival. Mr. Stevens is now in the hospital where he is said to be making satisfactory improvement after having received multiple injuries and a broken arm.

With Mr. and Mrs. Stevens in the roadway when they were hit was Mr. Clarence Koch, now living in Red Deer, who was formerly a resident of Drayton Valley. It was Mr. Koch who called the police to the scene.

An inquest has been called by Coroner Dr. Brooks. The inquest will be held at 1:00 p.m. in Elks Hall, Tuesday, May 24.

BOXING IN ELKS HALL

Under the auspices of the Drayton Valley Athletic Association the Pembina Boxing Club staged a number of bouts in the Elks Community Hall on Thursday evening, May 12. Rain and mud kept some away so attendance was not as good as it had been at previous matches. The rain and mud also delayed the group from the boxing clubs in Edmonton so the fights were late in getting started.

While the crowd waited for the bouts to arrive from Edmonton they were entertained in the ring by a very amusing show put on by the local club, in which five boys were blindfolded and put in the ring together. The five who participated in the blindfold-boxing were Wayne and Danny Thompson, Lloyd Matlock, Dennis Melars, and Arnold Sippola. No winners were announced from the "blind-mice" exhibition but the crowd got plenty of laughs.

When the fights got underway Lou Matlock, Eldon Herbert and Bill Johansson acted as judges with John Davies as timekeeper and John Followay as announcer. Dr. Waugh examined all the young boxers before they went into the ring. Andy Andersen acted as referee for all the matches.

STREET TELEPHONE BOOTH INSTALLED

Alberta Government Telephones recently installed a street telephone booth on the corner by the Hudson's Bay store, just across from the Hotel.

Making the first call from the new booth is Miss Marilyn Patterson, of McKenzies Shoe Store, while Mrs. Pat Stables, formerly employed in the Royal Bank, looks on.

The new telephone booth should garner a goodly amount of money for A.G.T., as it has already been in use quite a bit. It will be a real convenience to the public. One like it down near the hospital would be a wonderful boon to the residential section of the town.

LIONS PUT ON DANCE

In spite of inclement weather in the form of rain and its attendant evil, mud, the dance put on by the Drayton Valley Lions Club was quite well attended. Music was provided by the Valley Rhythm, and all report a very enjoyable time.

In the very near future the Lions hope to put on another dance in the same large Recreation Centre where these are room for all on the 10,000 square feet of floor.

Establishing various points along the death route taken by the pickup, Constables Chesterman, (front) and Adams (rear) used old tires to mark the various spots.

The place marked by Constable Adams at the rear of the picture is the point of impact where the bodies were hit by the vehicle.

The first tire in the picture (front) marks the place where one of Mrs. Steven's shoes was found, this is about 198 feet from the point of impact. The second tire from the front marks the spot where Mrs. Steven's body was found, about 164 feet from the point of impact, with the body of Mr. Stevens nearby. The third and fourth tire marks the place where Mr. Steven's shoes were found, nearer the point of impact.

Both the buildings in the foreground of the picture show mud that was thrown up, apparently by the pickup as it went by.

Later in the day the identification branch of the R.C.M.P., Edmonton office, barricaded off the area for a while while they took specimens of blood and paint and so on from the scene.
